

We were seeking to hire a new employee who would require some training to learn their new position. Just prior to that time, Scott Percifull from the North Central Career Centers in Leominster MA had stopped in to visit our office to give us information on the services his office provides. When I called Scott about the new employee search, not only was Scott helpful with the many questions I had, but we also discussed the hiring grant money that was available for a new hire who had been currently unemployed. Scott helped me find and fill out the paperwork, and then guided me to the right people and departments who helped me finish the grant process. We received the full award and it made a huge difference in the training we were able to offer our employee and it was a great way to defray the cost of hiring and training someone new.

When we wanted to hire an additional employee who needed to have some very technical skills, with a strong software knowledge background we again contacted the North Central Career Center. This time Scott helped me sort thru dozens of resumes, target 3 people to interview, and out of that process we hired one of the candidates. That employee has turned out to be an amazing success who not only brings the new skills to our office in a smooth fashion, but she has streamlined our paperwork to the point where we are saving both money and time. Scott had pointed out specific lines in this persons resume that he felt were strong points, and it is those qualifications that make this person the perfect fit in this new job.

I would highly recommend the North Central Career Center for their help, their expertise, and the ease of working with their employees. Everyone was very professional and each employee I met there was ready, willing and able to help me in finding just the right employee for our company. The NCCC has helped to keep our company a success in this ever changing marketplace.
